††† In 1306 twelve men from each hundred were appointed, with the assistance of the reeve and four lawful men of each vill, "to make a true valuation of the movable goods possessed by the people on a specified day", for tax assessed at a thirtieth in rural areas and at a twentieth in urban districts and ancient demesne of the Crown. This assessment of 15s 6 $\frac{1}{4}$ d therefore represents a valuation of the livestock and produce of the manor of £23 6s 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. However, conventional valuations were often made, all cows, oxen, etc being assessed at the same value irrespective of age, health, etc. Agricultural equipment, household goods and goods in the larder were normally exempt.
